underlining the importance of the benefits of foreign direct investment in that process,

Recognizing also the importance of the transfer of technology to the developing countries and countries with economies in transition as an effective means of international cooperation in the pursuit of poverty eradication and sustainable development,

Taking note of the corporate strategy of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization, which aims principally at promoting productivity growth as a means of supporting the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals and the measures being taken to operationalize this strategy,

Taking note also of the signing of the cooperation agreement between the United Nations Industrial Development Organization and the United Nations Development Programme on 23 September 2004 and that the agreement would lead to a better fulfilment of the primary objective of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization, which is to promote and accelerate industrial development in the developing countries while retaining its identity, visibility and core competencies,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General,[6] and welcomes the conclusions and recommendations contained therein;

2. Reaffirms that industrialization is an essential factor in the sustained economic growth and sustainable development of developing countries and countries with economies in transition as well as in the eradication of poverty, creation of productive employment, income generation and facilitation of social integration, including the integration of women into the development process;

3. Stresses the critical role of productive capacity-building and industrial development for the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals;

4. Takes note of the comprehensive review of the activities of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization conducted in line with its corporate strategy, which has enabled it to become a more focused, effective and efficient organization, especially for developing countries, capable of delivering concrete outcomes and providing valuable contribution to the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals;

5. Emphasizes the necessity of favourable international and national measures for the industrialization of developing countries, and urges all Governments to adopt and to implement development policies and strategies to unleash the productivity growth potential through private sector development, diffusion of environmentally sound and emerging technologies, investment promotion, enhanced access to markets and effective use of official development assistance to enable developing countries to achieve the Millennium Development Goals and to make this process sustainable;

6. Underlines the importance of industrial development cooperation and of a positive investment and business climate at the international, regional, subregional and national levels in promoting the expansion, diversification and modernization of productive capacities in developing countries, in particular the least developed countries, landlocked developing countries and countries with economies in transition;

7. Takes note with appreciation of the organization and outcome of the Global Biotechnology Forum, held in Concepción, Chile, from 2 to 5 March 2004, which was organized jointly by the United Nations Industrial Development Organization and the Government of Chile, with support from the International Centre for Genetic Engineering and Biotechnology, and invites the Industrial Development Board of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization to consider the final statement of the Forum;

8. Confirms the contribution of industry to social development, especially in the context of the linkages between industry and agriculture, and notes that, within the totality of these interlinkages, industry serves as a powerful source of employment generation, income creation and social integration required for the eradication of poverty;

9. Calls for the continuing use of official development assistance for industrial development in the developing countries and countries with economies in transition, calls upon donor countries and recipient countries to continue to cooperate in their efforts to achieve greater efficiency and effectiveness of official development assistance resources devoted to industrial development cooperation and to support the effort of developing countries and countries with economies in transition to promote industrial development cooperation among themselves, and underlines the importance of mobilizing funds for industrial development at the country level, including private funding and funds from relevant development finance institutions;

10. Reiterates the importance of cooperation and coordination within the United Nations system in providing effective support for the sustainable industrial development of developing countries and countries with economies in transition, and calls upon the United Nations Industrial Development Organization to continue to carry out its central role in the field of industrial development according to its mandate;

11. Encourages the United Nations Industrial Development Organization to continue to enhance its effectiveness, relevance and development impact by, inter alia, strengthening its cooperation with other institutions of the United Nations system at all levels;

12. Calls upon the United Nations Industrial Development Organization to participate actively in coordination at the field level through the common country assessment and the United Nations Development Assistance Framework processes and sector-wide approaches;

13. Welcomes the active participation of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization in the preparation of the work of the Millennium Project and other relevant United Nations initiatives, with a view to assisting developing countries to achieve the development goals contained in the Millennium Declaration, through, inter alia, addressing the specific needs of small and medium-sized enterprises;

14. Emphasizes the need to promote the development of micro, small and medium-sized enterprises, including by means of training, education and skills enhancement, with a special focus on agro-industry as a provider of livelihoods for rural communities;

15. Stresses the need for the United Nations Industrial Development Organization to promote the development of high-tech and value-added industries in developing countries, including those suffering from high transport costs;

16. Reaffirms the need to support the survival and expansion of industrial manufacturing activity in developing countries, and in this regard calls on the United Nations Industrial Development Organization to continue to improve its technical cooperation activities through, inter alia, the areas of technology diffusion and capacity-building for market access and development;

17. Welcomes the active role played by the United Nations Industrial Development Organization in the High-Level Committee on Programmes of the United Nations System Chief Executives Board for Coordination, and encourages it to continue to promote better policy coherence in the field of economic development;

18. Requests the United Nations Industrial Development Organization to facilitate industrial development with emphasis on the priority areas outlined in its medium-term programme framework, 2004-2007;

19. Encourages the United Nations Industrial Development Organization to increase its contributions to achieve the objectives of the New Partnership for Africa's Development, with a view to further strengthening the industrialization process in Africa;

20. Also encourages the United Nations Industrial Development Organization to further develop its global forum capacity according to its mandate, with the aim of enhancing, in the context of the globalization process, a common understanding of global and regional industrial sector issues and their impact on poverty eradication and sustainable development, and calls for further strengthening of the demand-driven integrated programme approach at the field level;

21. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its sixty-first session a report on the implementation of the present resolution.
